Inaugurate Annual Pilgrimage to Woodlawn on the Fourth Anniversary of Former Mayor's Death

McAneny Gives Eulogy

Airplanes Circle Above as Flowers Are Banked High on Mound in Cemetery

With airplanes circling over Woodlawn, their droning intermittently drowning the voices of the speakers, former commissioners of the Mitchel iministration established at Wood-Cemetery yesterday afternoon what they expect to make an annual rustom when they covered the grave of John Purroy Mitchel with floral

George McAneny, president of the Transit Commission, who was president of the Board of Aldermen while Major Mitchel was Mayor, eulogized the soldier-mayor for his civic spirit, his service as a soldier, his ability and his record as Mayor, declaring that he had established a standard to which all might turn and one which no man

City Needs More Like Him

"Our purpose here to-day," said Mr.
McAneny, "is to sound a note in memory of a man whose brilliant services were confined almost wholly to the city of New York. The record of this brave gentleman raises the hope that the future will produce men like him. Four years ago he died. The record of his activities marked him as a man of resourceful and fruitful activities in municipal and civil affairs, but many of us remember him as a friend. We who knew him well remember him as a persistent worker, but at the same time we remember him as the dreamer—the idealist, the man of vision. I believe that John Mitchel always thought that a man or woman who accepted public grice should put the performance of such a trust ahead of anything else.

"In that spirit of personal sacrifice he gave himself to the city of New York. He loved honesty, orderliness and efficiency in government. He possessed a passion for pure government and social justice. As we come back here from year to year to do honor to his memory, his real worth will rise in the minds of the people. While there were moments in his career as a public servant when he was misjudged, when he met his heroic death in the service of his nation it was like the outpouring of mether love for a stricter and falles of mether love for a stricter and falles of mether love for a stricter and falles of mether love for a stricter and falles."

He has done that very thing. As to his being the next Republican candidate for Governor, that rests with him. He is not seeking a renomination. The state organization is proceeding with its work on the assumption that the Governor will respect the party mandate and accept a renomination. There is no doubt in the minds of Republicans that he will be re-elected, if a candidate. Many leading Democrats admit he cannot be beaten. It will make little difference to us who is nominated by the Democrats. Governor Miler is the man of the hour.
